Dear Colleagues,

We would like to update you on the next phase of activity related to the recently announced strategic merger of MIM and Chronimed.

We have established an integration leadership team consisting of Brian Reagan, Vice President, Corporate Development of Chronimed and Al Carfora, President and Chief Operating Officer of MIM. Their assignment is to thoroughly assess and analyze the resources and capabilities of each firm as a first step toward merging our two companies.

Brian and Al are responsible for reviewing each functional area of our existing businesses and making recommendations on integration to executive management. These recommendations will be studied and decisions made with a view towards making BioScrip the strongest possible competitor in the marketplace. Ultimately, a successful integration will allow us to be fully prepared to join together as BioScrip, a company which will be one of the healthcare industry's premier providers of pharmacy services.

Combining our two companies is a complex task. As we create BioScrip, it is important that we remain focused on operating our existing businesses and serving our customers with the same level of care and professionalism that made both our companies successful. At the same time, to help streamline the process, all work relative to integration, regardless of department, will go through the integration team. A closely coordinated effort will minimize business interruptions and safeguard against duplicating work.

We expect the analysis phase of the integration process to take approximately three to four weeks. Resulting decisions will be communicated as quickly thereafter as possible.

While these are exciting times for all of us, we fully appreciate that change is demanding both personally and professionally. We will proceed as quickly as possible through our integration planning process, and will now begin regular communication on our progress in forging a single company, one we see as providing exceptional growth opportunities for you, our employees, and our investors in the months and years ahead.

Thank you for your continued support.
